September 2017

It's hard to believe summer is drawing to a close, and we hope it has brought you rest, relaxation, and renewal. BRAVO has remained hard at work planning for the upcoming 2017-18 season, and we are excited for our lineup of new programs.

On Sunday, November 8, 2017, we begin with our Annual Luncheon that will include a memorable piano concert by David Maiullo, our Music Director, and vocal concert by soprano, Justyna Gierola. The Luncheon serves as an important fundraising event that helps BRAVO continue its mission of promoting the performing arts, and we hope you can join us. It offers a great time to socialize with family and friends, meet new people, and experience superb musical talent. Please mark the date on your calendar. We now take credit cards. If you are unable to join us for the Luncheon, we look forward to seeing you at one of our subsequent events.

As we begin a new season, I wish to extend special thanks to the Bravo Board of Trustees and the Advisory Board. They spent many hours planning the upcoming season, and they work hard behind the scenes to donate time, food, money, and leadership. They are a key factor to our success, and I appreciate their efforts.

Whatever role you play in our Bravo family, please know how grateful I am for you. We look forward to your continued support and another successful year.

Sincerely,
Joanne Williams

MISSION STATEMENT

Bravo Alliance of Performing Artists (“Bravo”) promotes sustained growth of the performing arts by creating meaningful opportunities for performing artists to share their gifts more fully. By collaborating with fellow performing arts entities in New Jersey and the New York City Metropolitan Area, Bravo organizes, sponsors, and presents professional-caliber concerts, productions, and related events that feature Bravo’s selected artists. Bravo aims to (i) educate the artists on all aspects of performance, genre, and productions; (ii) expand their repertoires; (iii) connect the artists with more established and experienced performers; (iv) offer the artists increased exposure to the performing arts world; and (v) expand the availability of quality performing arts experiences for audiences of all ages.

The BRAVO Alliance of Performing Artists is a registered 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization. We rely on your support. If you wish to make a donation to the BRAVO Alliance, you may use our website or mail it to:
